DRIVE TRANSIT TO SUCCESS.

PUBLIC TRANSIT MATTERS...

In addition to serving as the sole means for many to get to work and access needed goods and services, transit plays a significant role in fueling local economies. It attracts business and industry, sparks development, influences employee mobility, promotes equality and much more. That's why Citizens for Modern Transit (CMT) is continually working to help expand a safe, integrated and affordable public transportation system throughout the St. Louis region.

To stay on mission, make a difference and drive transit to success, CMT relies on the support of its members. CMT is currently backed by more than 20,000 transit riders, employers, academic institutions and labor/community organizations. Your help is greatly needed, too.

HELP BUILD THE FRAMEWORK FOR THE FUTURE

With the help of members, and in collaboration with area partners, CMT is furthering the framework upon which public transit can continue to thrive.

The organization leads feasibility studies; secures funding, including the needed federal dollars for Metro to build the new MetroLink Station at Cortex; creates nationally recognized, award-winning programs designed to boost ridership; serves as a strong and effective voice on transit-related matters, and works to help ensure the safety and security of the system.
